

ALL PARDONS GIVEN BY A SITTING PRESIDENT MUST BE CONDITIONAL

If a sitting President is a convicted felon, impeached or is convicted in any court of any felony for crimes committed while they were President, then the following applies.

If a sitting President is a convicted felon, impeached or is convicted in any court of any felony for crimes committed while they were President, then the following applies.

All pardons given by a sitting president while they were in office are automatically voided. And those voided pardoned individuals must surrender forthwith to finish their sentences.

Failure to surrender forthwith carries a life sentence with no chance of a pardon again. This will be an ex post facto law, which should be allowed because they were already convicted, and a criminal act freed them unfairly.

This is similar to the law that said all felons must give a DNA sample, even if their conviction happened before the DNA law went into effect.

In any event, when Trump is Impeached, this law will send all of them back to prison.

Visit; www.usalawreviewcommittee.com

By; Lucky Lieberman at butwhatthefukdoiknow.substack.com